

The U.S. media is already heavily biased towards pro-corporate, war mongering attitudes. The large media conglomerates actively function to stifle dissent, under report opposition to right wing policies and practices, bound debates excluding most progressive arguments. The large media conglomerates already flaunt existing regulations without punishment. This indicates the regulations are already too soft, they need to be strengthened, not weakened.